SEPHORA

Diversity & Inclusion Progress Report

In 2020, Sephora's guide launched its Diversity and Inclusion strategy with the ambition to become the most inclusive beauty retailer. Our strategy is rooted in three pillars: employees, consumers and communities. We're committed to driving change – fearlessly leading and openly learning along the way. We will continue to show progress in these areas and bringing in all parts of our business. To remove governance and ensure accountability, we've established a D&I Council, which is responsible for key D&I initiatives that deliver impact. We're also dedicated to being a top beauty community updated on our journey.

As Sephora Lisa Shanahan and Global Diversity & Inclusion Director Lisa Skriloff, and North American Vice President of Stores Jorge Rodriguez, and Communities.

Employees
We want to create a culture of inclusion by utilizing equitable and inclusive practices to attract, support and develop our employees.

Consumers
We want to meet the diverse needs of all clients (existing and potential) by providing an inclusive experience that is rooted in listening to our consumers and delivering on their expectations.

Communities
We align with organizations that focus on social inclusion and have the opportunity to support our target communities and Sephora Collection.
